Mr and Mrs Campbell attended the teachers' convention at Saginaw—Mr and Mrs J M Rowley and Mr Kleth of Detroit, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Rowley's mother, Mrs Keys.

New Sources of National Revenue

The next Congress, with a Democratic President, a Democratic Senate and a Democratic House, will face a rapidly diminishing treasury and must take measures to replenish it.

The first and best aid to the sick and wounded would be found in a new tariff law constructed to protect American interests and at the same time increase the revenue from imports; but, unfortunately, the administration rejects both the medicine and surgery of modern economic science and adheres to its desolate doctrine of the unprotected market and so we must look further.

The stamp taxes upon ordinary business transactions ought to be abolished. They are not only irritating and inconvenient, but they are inequitable and unjust. The income tax law, while complicated beyond understanding in many respects, is essentially sound. It can easily be made the source of more revenue than we now receive. I thoroughly believe in the exemption of small incomes, but the exemption is too large and should be reduced. On the other hand, the rate levied on the very large incomes is too low.

During the continuance of the war we should tax, and tax heavily, the business of manufacturing and selling arms and munitions for export. Nothing could be more just than a measure which would transfer to the treasury some of the unprecedented profit of those who are engaged in such trade.

Spenser or later we shall be compelled to tax great inheritances, either direct or collateral, possibly both. Such an imposition is eminently fair, but if it were practicable it should be preceded by an amendment to the Constitution empowering an adjustment between the state and federal authorities to accomplish uniformity. Whether anything can now be done in that direction is most doubtful, but it is clear that in some way we will shortly reach that source of national income—From "Defense and Revenue in the Next Congress," by Albert B. Cummins, in the American Review of Reviews for November.

Accepting the Japanese Throne.

The Emperor will rise, make obeisance, and read a prayer. Then he will tell his imperial ancestors that he accepts the throne. Clapping his hands, he accepts the "Divine Treasures of his Imperial Ancestors," the Sword, Jewel and Mirror—which have been bequeathed by the first imperial ancestor, Amaterasu Omi Kami, to her descendants as symbols of imperial power. After this, the Emperor and Empress will retire, the sacred food will be removed, and the door of the sanctuary closed. Three times the gongs and drums will sound, and the assemblage will disperse.

The afternoon ceremony of Coronation Day will take place in the throne room of Shishinden palace, in Kyoto. The throne room itself will be decorated with a short curtain hung under the southern eaves of the hall, and at each side of the room will be a golden phoenix and several mirrors. In the center, facing the south, a dais with three steps has been erected, upon which the imperial chairs will stand.

The members of the royal household will take their places in front of the throne, and the Emperor will enter the throne room and take his seat. The Empress will follow to her place. The Emperor, holding the sceptre upright against his breast, will stand up. The Empress, holding her fan, also will rise. The assemblage then will rise and most respectfully salute. After the Emperor delivers a short imperial message, telling his subjects he accepts the throne, Prime Minister Okuma will read the congratulatory address. He will then give three "Banzai" cheers, in which all the assemblage will join. The Emperor and Empress will then depart, and the drums and gongs will be sounded three times as a signal that the coronation function is over.—From "Japan and the Coronation," by Martha L. Root, in the American Review of Reviews for November.

Flat Footed.

Little old Manhattan Island is flat-footed, wears poor shoes and stands up at its work, according to figures compiled by Captain Frank E. Evans of the New York recruiting office of the United States Marine Corps.

Captain Evans is authority for the statement that approximately 18 per cent of all applicants who applied for enlistment in the Marine Corps at its Twenty-third street office during the past year, were rejected for "pes planus" or flat foot. He puts the blame on the cheaply constructed, poorly made shoes the average toiler wears at his work for the epidemic of failing arch, and on the fact that the majority of victims claimed they were forced to stand on their feet for long stretches while at their employment.

Motormen, conductors, subway guards, policemen, machinists, waiters and clerks are the principal sufferers from "pes planus," Captain Evans says.

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe.

K C Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; 1/4 to 1/2 cup shortening; 3 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the biscuit enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and roll lightly. Cut in small shapes and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pans place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

Have you seen the new K C Cook's Book? Trifling of appetizing recipes that simply must be successful every time if the few simple directions are carefully followed. You would gladly pay 50 cents for this valuable book, yet we send it absolutely free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder. JAMES MFG. CO., Chicago. Small cans do not have Cook's Book certificate.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
